

Forecast for Disaster: The Weather behind Black Saturday

This exclusive documentary looks behind the human tragedy and explains the culmination of extreme weather conditions that led to Black Saturday. Narrated by John Wood.

Australia's worst bushfire struck regions across Victoria on Black Saturday, February 7, 2009. It took over 170 lives, left more than seven thousand homeless and became the country's most devastating weather events on record.

As Australia still counts the cost, this exclusive documentary looks behind the human tragedy and explains the culmination of extreme weather conditions that led to Black Saturday.

Forecast for Disaster: La Niña Strikes

An Australian documentary special explaining the rainfall, floods and cyclones that changed our nation. Narrated by Bill Hunter.

In this landmark two-part documentary special, The Weather Channel reveals the convergence of global weather patterns and how they set the stage for an unprecedented run of weather impacts that left Australia worn.

The Weather Channel experts studied, reported and warned of the building danger. They saw its echoes in history. They understood the dangerous dance of geography and climate as our country leapt from one cycle to the next.

Combining eyewitness accounts, numbing images of destruction and insightful expert commentary, Forecast for Disaster: La Niña Strikes clearly explains the complex hold weather has over our destiny and prepares us for the next strike of Australia's weather curse.
